

Biography DJ SEEPMAN

Henri Seepers (1971) discovers very early that life is not easy and always fair. He had to go to special education at a very young age, and was often bullied. As a result, he often sat in his bedroom and listened to the radio. That is probably also the reason that music was his passion from an early age. From that time on, music has been a common thread through Henri's life, known as DJ Seepman. Paaspop, Urban Matterz, King of Colors, Mysteryland, and Decibel (Camping) are among his list of achievements. He was also a regular guest at Club W (van Aken, Den Bosch), and the Verkadefabriek

Seepman's passion started when his parents gave him a record player on his 9th birthday. He spent all his pocket money on singles and albums. At night little Henri dreamed of a career in music. As a drummer, guitarist or radio deejay. However, he never picked up an instrument. He did have the vinyl spinning at school and at family parties and with friends. He experiences one of Henri's first highlights in his uncle and aunt's pub, when he is allowed to provide the music for the visitors. From that day on, he knows what he really wants. Entertaining people with music.

During his military service in Seedorf, Germany, eighteen-year-old Henri explored various new music styles. House music was flourishing those days. However, rock and hip-hop had his preference then. After his military service, he went to work at a Drive-in show in his spare time. After a few years he tried his deejay luck in the local catering industry with success, he played at various cafes and discotheques, and accidentally ended up at the local radio. After ten years of making various radio programs, he was done. Henri wanted to extend his knowledge and started experimenting to make music on his computer and various hardware.

2019 was a beautiful and successful year. Henri decided to turn his passion into his profession. That same year he performed at various festivals, events and clubs. In addition, he had various bookings for parties and celebrations. During the corona crisis, he started to immerse himself in nu-disco/house and would include that in his set as well. Until disaster struck in 2020. In the night of 24 to 25 November an attempt was made on his life and his parental home. Fortunately, he was able to leave the house just in time. However, there is nothing left of his home-studio and his music collection. Thanks to friends, colleagues and many lovely people who donated their vinyl to him, Seepman has been able to continue his passion again. Of course in an adjusted form. The man is back on track, ready to hit the clubs, festivals and events again. Both digitally and with vinyl. DJ Seepman is known as the "The Vinyl Groove" for a reason and he now knows, as never before, that you should celebrate life because every day could be your last.
